1. Introduction

Mentoring has been part of human civilization since the known history. Children have been mentored by the parents, students by the teachers, juniors by the seniors, followers by the leaders, and so on. The signs of structured and planned mentoring can be found in older civilizations including the Greeks.

The education and training done by Jesus (PBUH) of his companions is a genuine example of mentoring. Holy books and teachings of Jesus (PBUH) are being taught to the world through his (PBUH) companions. Likewise, the education and training given by Hazrat Muhammad (PBUH) is quite an effective example of successful mentoring. The educational institutions of Madinah (Masjid Nabvi), Haram-Makkah, Damascus, Al-Azhar (Egypt), Baghdad (Iraq), Tunisia, etc. are successful examples of effective mentoring system.

In Muslims history, the signs of successful and effective mentoring are found among great and famous educational institutes ran by Muslim scholars (Ulema) and Sufis such as Jalal-Ud-din Roomi, Sheikh Ali Hijveri, Shah Wali Ullah, etc.

When the education system got formalized and commercialized, the student has become merely the product and the teacher merely the producer. Every second of this whole process has been measured in rupees and dollars.

It was felt that the education process should include moral and humanitarian values other than various skills and techniques. In this regard, mentoring systems were introduced in developed as well as the developing countries.
